KIWANIANS LEARN ABOUT SCENERY IN MEXICO

Harry Herz was chairman of the program at Wednesday noon Kiwanis luncheon with a highly interesting program.

Thelma Fox sang a solo, accompanied on the piano by May Sakamoto. Both girls are from Point Loma high school.

Senator Ed Fletcher gave a short talk on Mexico followed by a number of scenic reels of the country from La Paz to Mazatlan. Also movies of the trip in the bays of the west coast for several thousand miles south, and a trip to the gulf of California, enjoyed just a few weeks ago, when his family enjoyed fishing in the gulf, going south from Mexicali. In his talk Senator Fletcher stated that there are about twelve million people in Mexico and that seven to eight million are Indians who have the privilege of the ballot.

Ed Fletcher, Jr., accompanied his father to the meeting to assist in operating the picture machine.

BELOVED HUMANITARIAN GOES TO LAST REWARD

Tom Shore, 58, well known San Diegan, leader of Kiwanis and highly respected in Ad Club and civic affairs, died Wednesday morning at Mercy hospital from an incurable illness.

Tom was well known to Ocean Beach business men and was highly respected for his humanitarian spirit and love for children and honest understanding of men. Too great praise cannot be given for his service to the people and city of San Diego. And the loving care and devotion to his mother who passed away three years ago.

May his resting place be as peaceful as his spirit was while he was with us here on earth.

New Market Basket Food Store Open Today

Today is the announced grand opening of Milton Lancaster's new Market Basket food store, next door to the post office.

A score of workmen have been busy the past ten days entirely remodeling this store. Mr. McAlpine, owner of the building, has taken out the plate glass front and the store will have sliding doors, allowing the front to be entirely free of access to the public during business hours. Fixtures and merchandise are now in place for the accommodation of its customers.

Mr. Lancaster has been manager of the Newport avenue Safeway store until January 1st, when he resigned to conduct his own Market Basket. Henry Voss, brother-in-law of Lancaster, an experienced grocer, will be first assistant.

The meat department has been equipped with the most modern fixtures and will be presided over by O. F. Herremann.

Lancaster states the Market Basket will have competitive prices with a complete line of all fruits, vegetables, groceries and meats, and that his store is a home-owned and home-operated complete food market.

See prices of merchandise on page 8 of this issue of The Ocean Beach News.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

"A Set Purpose" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon in this Sunday morning's hour of worship at 11 a. m. The Young people's society will meet at 6:30 p. m. Miss Margie Linthicum will direct the program of the hour. At 7:30 p. m. the pastor will speak on subject "The Return of Satan".

SPECIAL BUSINESS FOR CHAMBER COMMERCE MONDAY

Next Monday evening is regular meeting time for the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce and the special matter to come before the body is more bus service for the students at Point Loma High school.

All civic organizations are invited to send a representative who should first make some investigation of the lack of these facilities at the present time to see what remedy might be suggested.

New officers for the organization for 1936 should also be elected at Monday night's meeting.

KNOLES-KLINE ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT TEA

Announcing the engagement of Miss Martha Eloise Kline to A. Norman Knoles, was made last Saturday afternoon at a tea given by Mrs. Leo L. Guichard of San Diego. Tiny parchment scrolls disclosed the wedding date as April 4 and the wedding will be solemnized in the chapel of Mission Inn, Riverside. Mrs. Guichard will attend the bride as matron of honor and Chester Harritt will serve as best man. Miss Kline, who is the daughter of Mrs. C. W. Merritt of Glendale, is well known in Ocean Beach, having lived here with her parents, attending the Ocean Beach elementary school, several years ago, and later graduating from San Diego high and State college. Miss Kline has been secretary of the Brooklyn school in San Diego, for the past seven years. Mr. Knoles, who is the son of Mrs. Bel Knoles, is a member of Beta Phi Sigma fraternity, and a teacher in the city schools.

Mrs. C. W. Merritt of Glendale, mother of Miss Kline, was a house guest of Mrs. Flora Loftus, Ocean Beach, last week end. Mrs. Merritt came down to attend the announcement party given in honor of her daughter.

Newspapers Preferred By Large Advertisers

Newspapers are the preferred advertising media for banks in United States and Canada, according to preliminary reports on a national survey which has just been completed by the Financial Advertisers Association with headquarters in Chicago.

Ninety-eight percent of the banks replying to a questionnaire sent out by the Association said they will use newspaper advertising in 1936.

Almost 27 percent of the banks will increase their advertising expenditures in 1936, approximately 9 percent will decrease expenditures, and 64 percent will spend as much as they did in 1935.

Growing realization by banks that they must sell themselves as well as their services is evidenced by the fact that 80 percent of the banks answering the questionnaire plan to use at least some institutional advertising during the year.

In addition, 44 percent also will use educational advertising. Fifty-five percent will advertise savings accounts; 64 percent, commercial loans; 71 percent, executorships under wills. Loans of all kinds, including FHA loans, will be heavily stressed.

The increasing attention which banks are paying to the problem of public relations is shown all thru the questionnaire. For instance, 60 percent of the banks will have officers make regular calls on customers, 46 percent will conduct staff meetings on customers and public relations. Programs of educational talks before schools, clubs and other organizations are planned by 26 percent of the banks included in the survey.

More than a half million new plants have been set out by the California Pacific International Exposition for its 1936 season.

No New Taxes Soon, Says

Senator Pat Harrison

SENATOR PAT HARRISON of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, on his arrival in Washington for the opening of congress gave out the welcome statement that no new general tax legislation would be pushed through during this session. Said he: "I don't look for it and I don't think it is in the realm of possibility."

Sen. Harrison.

Adoption of a manufacturer's excise tax was also "out," according to Harrison. He pictured an unusually short session of congress with appropriation bills and amendments to existing legislation the principal business to be handled.

In the senator's opinion a compromise on the bonus, always politically vexatious, would be reached and a presidential veto would be avoided. Harrison reiterated his opposition to the Townsend old age pension plan and said it would make no progress at the new session.

Many house members agreed with Harrison as to taxes. It wouldn't be good policy to pass such measures this session for there will be elections in 435 congressional districts in 1936.

Pat Harrison took a crack at the Liberty league and its legislative program offered to congress. The league, he said, was "ready to take over the legislative and judicial functions" of the national government and might be magnanimous enough to take over the executive branch as well. The senator called the league a "lobby" and described its statements as "plutocratic propaganda."

Alcohol Control Valid,

Says Federal Judge

FEDERAL JUDGE CHARLES J. BRIGGLE of Peoria, Ill., ruled that the Federal Alcohol Control administration act is constitutional, the decision being made in a test case brought by a Peoria distillery company. The alcohol administration closed the distillery, asserting it held no basic permit at the time the old code was outlawed by the Supreme court. The company, held it did hold such a permit and applied for a new one.

Judge Briggle denied the plea for an injunction to force the administration temporarily to retract its decision on the application for a basic permit. In his decision he said:

"The former objections to the wrongful delegation of legislative authority with reference to the so-called 'code' provisions now has been obviated by this act, and while the plaintiff's position in some other respects is not without merit, yet the court is not convinced that sufficient doubt exists as to the constitutionality of the act to warrant the court in granting a temporary injunction."

Ruling by McCarl Halts

Relief Food Purchase

COMPTROLLER GENERAL J. R. McCARL issued an order that blocked the plans of the Federal Surplus Commodity corporation to buy surplus farm products for relief distribution.

He held that the administration could not use the 30 per cent of gross customs receipts set aside for the AAA to buy farm products to be given to relief clients. In a letter to Secretary Wallace, McCarl said relief legislation and relevant statutes provided another way to handle such purchases.

It was believed McCarl's ruling would not affect AAA plans for purchases for diversion purposes and not for relief distribution. An offer has been made for purchases of surplus potatoes from the 1935 crop, to be diverted into industrial channels. Officials said, however, they did not expect growers to take advantage of this offer because of recently advanced prices for potatoes.

Latest Returns From

Literary Digest Poll

NEW DEALERS speak scornfully of the Presidential poll conducted by the Literary Digest, but everyone is eager to see what it reveals. The latest returns show a still further decline in New Deal popularity. Out of a total of 987,158 votes received, 577,631 answered negatively the question "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" This brought the negative percentage to the new high figure of 58.51 per cent. The last preceding percentage was 57.69.

Eleven of the thirteen southern states continued solidly New Deal. Only Florida and Oklahoma voted against it. The twelve middle western farm states continued balloting more than 3 to 2 against the administration.

The Rocky Mountain states, with the single exception of Utah, contributed substantial majorities against the New Deal, as did four of the six New England states, which were voting 3 to 1 against Roosevelt.

Senate Munitions Probers

to Hear J. P. Morgan

MEMBERS of the senate munitions committee announced that they would resume on January 7 their investigation of whether loans to the allies helped to get the United States into the World war, and the first witnesses will be J. P. Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont, of Morgan & Co. The committee plans to try for the enactment of broader neutrality legislation.

The Morgan firm, which was fiscal agent for Great Britain during the war, has denied emphatically that it played any part in leading America into the conflict. Chairman Nye and other committee members have thought otherwise.

Benson Named to Fill

Out Schall's Term

ELMER A. BENSON, state banking commissioner of Minnesota, was appointed United States senator by Gov. Floyd B. Olson to complete the term of the late Senator Thomas D. Schall. He will serve until December 31, 1936. Mr. Benson has been a Farmer-Laborite since that party's birth and before that was active in the Nonpartisan league movement in Minnesota. He is forty years old.

The new senator is an advocate of public ownership of monopolistic industry and a backer of collective bargaining for labor. He has urged greater levies on higher incomes and inheritances, and favors immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

"I shall be very glad," Benson said, "to join the liberal bloc in congress in opposition to those who would turn the arms of the clock backwards and perpetuate a system callous to human suffering, which neither understands nor wants to understand the meaning of human happiness."

Mississippi Valley Plan

of Senator Norris

WITHOUT waiting for a ruling by the Supreme court on the validity of the Tennessee Valley authority act, Senator Norris of Nebraska, father of that and much other advanced legislation, has prepared a bill for a Mississippi Valley authority, along the same lines as the TVA but immensely greater in scope. He intends to introduce the measure soon in congress. It would embrace more than half of continental United States, including all the vast plain between the Alleghenies and the western continental divide and from near the Canadian border to the delta of the Mississippi; only the Tennessee valley would be omitted from the plan.

Norris said it was an expansion of his former plan for a Missouri valley authority. Flood control would be its chief goal, he disclosed, but it also would direct the development of navigation, irrigation, hydroelectric power, soil conservation and reforestation.

Like TVA it would be managed by a three-man directorate. The cost is not stated. Congress would vote funds from year to year as the work progressed.

Uruguay Severs Relations

With Soviet Russia

DECLARING that all America is menaced with violence by the Communists, the Uruguayan government severed relations with the government of Soviet Russia; Minister Alexander Rinkin and his staff were handed their passports, and the Uruguayan charge d'affaires was recalled from Moscow. The decree, signed by President Gabriel Terra and all members of the cabinet, asserted that Montevideo was the headquarters of Communists who were plotting uprisings in all South America countries, and quoted the Brazilian charges that the abortive rebellion there in November was instigated by the Soviet government and that the Montevideo legation was its intermediary.

Relations with Russia were broken on these three formal charges:

1. That the recent congress of the Third Internationale in Moscow agreed to push a communistic drive throughout South America, with Communists involved in the Brazilian uprising.

2. That the Soviet legation remitted checks for large sums to unidentified recipients, "providing foundation" for a presumption that the legation actively aided Communist plans.

3. That there was a direct connection between the Third Internationale and the Soviet government.

Dr. Jose Espalter, Uruguayan foreign minister, said:

"We have proof that Montevideo was the center of a gigantic Soviet expansionist plot and that Minkin was organizing a revolution in Uruguay for next February or March."

Uruguay is the only South American nation that recognized the Soviet Russian government.

Huge Deficit in First

Half of Fiscal Year

WITH the final week not reported, the treasury came to the end of the first half of the current fiscal year with receipts behind expenditures by about $1,786,000,000. For every dollar collected in taxes and other revenues since the financial year began July 1, $1.95 had been spent. Of the latter, $1.10 went for the regular general expenditures of department and bureaus and 85 cents was for relief and other emergency purposes.

These factors, coupled with prospective expenditures, caused an increase of $1,843,000,000 in the gross federal public debt. The debt rose from $28,700,000,000 last July 1, to $30,543,000,000 on December 23.

For the same period, all categories of receipts, except processing taxes, showed increases over a year ago. Total receipts were $1,805,000,000 compared with $1,811,000,000 in the same period of the 1935 fiscal year.

Against the public debt total, the treasury had a balance of $2,291,000,000 in cash on hand, which included $143,000,000 of its gold profits resulting from the revaluation of the dollar, and $252,000,000 from seigniorage charges on the coinage of newly mined silver.

The working balance totaled $1,895,000,000, much larger than usual because some $900,000,000 was borrowed to meet the wintertime costs of the relief and recovery programs.

Chance for European War

Seems to Increase

WAR clouds over Europe were growing denser and blacker during the Christmas holidays when all the Christian world was supposed to be singing "Peace on Earth, good will toward men."

Under the skillful guidance of Anthony Eden, the new British foreign secretary, a solid front against Italy was being built up. There was no present talk of further sanctions against Mussolini, but it is expected added penalties will be put in force late in January. Meanwhile the general military and naval staffs of Great Britain and France concluded conversations which were declared "satisfactory," meaning that those nations were prepared to stand by each other in case II Duce makes what Prime Minister Baldwin called "a mad dog attack." In the capitals of other members of the League of Nations similar plans were being laid by military and naval attaches.

Turkey came into line with the other presumptive opponents of Italy, but is reported to have made a suggestion that France doesn't like. This is that it be permitted to fortify the Dardanelles, the strait between Europe and Asiatic Turkey which was demilitarized under the treaty of Lausanne after the World war. The Turks also, according to Paris' advice, ask the eventual return of the island of Rhodes in the Aegean sea, which has been under Italian sovereignty since 1923.

Eden is a firm believer in the League of Nations and, though he is moving with caution, is determined to bring Italy to terms through the sanctions provided the other members of the league give the necessary support.

The British government certainly doesn't want war with Italy, but it is fast preparing for armed conflict if that shall prove to be unavoidable.

That Mussolini, too, is getting ready for extreme eventualities was evidenced by orders cancelling all Christmas leaves of all officers and men of the army. The same orders directed the return to their units of the 100,000 army men demobilized in November in order that they might do the needed work on their farms.

Premier Laval, defending his course in the negotiations to end the Italo-Ethiopian war and promising that France would stand by Great Britain faithfully if the latter were attacked, saved his government temporarily by the slight margin of twenty votes. He skillfully dodged the oil embargo issue. It was believed that his downfall before long was likely.

Terms on Which Ethiopia

Will Discuss Peace

DISPATCHES from Addis Ababa said reliable sources there disclosed the terms on which Emperor Haile Selassie had authorized his delegation at Geneva to discuss peace. They were thus stated:

Withdrawal of Italian troops from Ethiopia; recognition of the African empire's sovereignty; payment of indemnity by Italy; delimitation of East African boundaries between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies by a league of nations committee, and foreign economic, administrative, and financial aid and advice for Ethiopia only on the condition there would be no Italian influence.

Lindbergh's Going May

Lead to Crime Inquiry

DEPARTURE of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with his wife and child from the United States because of threats of kidnapers probably will lead to a congressional investigation of crime. Senator Pope of Idaho said he was prepared to introduce a resolution calling for such an inquiry, in the hope of making America a safer place in which to live.

His resolution would authorize an investigation of local enforcement conditions, primarily to determine if an "American Scotland Yard" controlled by the federal government could coordinate police agencies successfully.

LANDSLIDE IMPERILS S. F. COLLEGE

Picture shows part of huge landslide on slopes of Lone Mountain, San Francisco, with buildings of the San Francisco College for Women seen in background. 30,000 tons of earth slid away, taking with it 300 feet of concrete roadway. Man-made changes in the configuration of the hill are believed to have caused the shift.

TWO CARS COLLIDE ON ELEVATED

Death swooped down close to the elevated tracks at Wall Street and Sixth, Los Angeles, then lifted its wings and left the passengers unharmed. Two coaches of the Pacific Electric teetered crazily, but paused within inches of disaster. With a little more momentum both cars, it is believed, would have plunged from the "L" structure to a parking lot below. Just a few feet from the point of collision is the Wall Street intersection filled with a steady stream of traffic.

Challenged

Dr. F. E. Townsend, author of the old age pension plan, has been asked by the California Crusaders to meet one of their representatives, Samuel J. Hume, in a public debate on the plan. The Crusaders is a non-partisan organization formed to combat the economic principles of the Townsend plan.

Building Permits Double

San Francisco.—California's building activity in November more than doubled that of the same month a year ago, according to a survey covering 51 cities, compiled by the State Chamber of Commerce. Total permits were valued at $9,022,822, a gain of 104.6 per cent over the total of $4,409,669 in November last year. Improvement over seasonal normal was 15 per cent.

Tax Returns Increase

Sacramento.—Improved conditions in California—reflected in increased returns from various tax sources—gave an optimistic tinge to an otherwise darkened State financial outlook during 1935.

Held In Son's Death

With a large dark veil of mourning partly hiding her face, Mrs. Grace Du Bois, 61-year-old woman is shown in jail, Los Angeles, where she is held on suspicion of slaying her own son, Dr. Charles W. Du Bois. She says he was shot accidentally by a young stranger in her home. But police can't find the "stranger".

15,000 Seagulls Go On Spree

Oakland.—More than 15,000 bay district seagulls awoke with hangovers one morning during the holiday season. It seems the birds partook too freely of liquor emptied in the Oakland dumps by the State Board of Equalization. The alcohol had been seized in liquor violation cases and shortly after it had been poured out the dumps become covered with limbing seagulls.

To Complete Woodland City Hall

Woodland.—Construction work on the final unit of the Woodland City Hall is being started by Charles Unger of Sacramento. The building will be ready for occupancy in April.

Russian Children Are to Build a Railway Tunnel

A railway tunnel, 3,000 feet of line, and a station complete in every detail are to be built in their spare time by 500 children in the Tiflis Park of Culture and Rest at Moscow.

These projects will be an extension of the famous Children's Railway built in the park by the children themselves. It is run entirely by children and has two stations and 1,200 feet of track. It was opened three months ago, and since then 65,000 passengers have ridden in its tiny train, driven by a child. The work of building the railway was supervised by engineers of the Transcaucasian railway.—Montreal Herald.

Engineers Will Move River

to Create an Airdrome Site

To move a river so that an aerodrome can be built sounds a fantastic task—yet that is what engineers are about to do near Nice. The mouth of the Var, a large river there, is to be completely diverted so that an aerodrome can be built where its waters have flowed out to the sea for countless centuries.

For some years the mouth has been gradually silted up, and a delta has been forming under the surface of the water. Now it is proposed to move the river bed 200 yards to the west, so that the delta becomes dry land. On this will be built an important aerodrome.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains—and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

The proper treatment for a bilious child

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult. The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY?

DR. JAMES W. BARTON
Talks About

Overweight—Is It Organic?
ONE of the points about overweight that should be remembered is that the excess fat tissue is not deposited in everybody alike. Some have most of the excess fat about the abdomen, others in the neck where it makes a double or triple chin, others have the fat about the chest and shoulders and others mostly about the hips.

Ordinary overweight or obesity simply means that fat has got in and about the different organs and tissues of the body, interfering with the action of these organs and tissues and to that extent interfering with health. There are cases of course where the fat actually takes the place of the tissues; that is, the tissue becomes fat—fatty degeneration—which is really a disease. When an excess of fat becomes deposited on or in the body the first symptom is an increase in the rate of breathing—a slight breathlessness. The breathing is not only noticeable to the individual but can be heard by others.

The breathing becomes faster and more noisy; even walking on the level may cause breathlessness and walking upstairs becomes very difficult. There is usually an increased thirst, more water or other liquids are taken which of course means a further increase in weight.

Sometimes Mind Is Alert.
Digestion may remain good, sleep urgent, and there is likely to be an enlargement of the liver and heart due to the extra work put on these organs. In some cases, strange to say, the mental alertness seems to be as keen as ever. As has been mentioned before very fat individuals do not resist such diseases as pneumonia and bronchitis very well, and are considered "poor risks" for operation.

Now, putting on fat is not usually a sudden process, although after some ailments or a change in certain glands fat accumulates quickly.

As accumulating fat then is a slow process taking months and sometimes years, and the excess fat is simply due to the fact that more food is eaten than the body needs taking the fat off, and preventing it accumulating is just as simple. It means just eating and drinking a little less every day.

The next step is that fatigue or tiredness comes on with less effort than when the weight was normal. The extra weight the body has to handle and the interference the fat causes in the organs and tissues brings on fatigue sooner.

Naturally as it is a "burden" to move around or take any exercise fat individuals dislike more and more, to take exercise which, of course, means a further increase in weight.

How Fat Accumulates.
As the appetite remains good there is no cutting down on the intake of food, sleepiness is felt, which means more accumulation of fat because even standing or walking would use up some fat whereas lying down allows fat to accumulate.

However if there is not too much fat the individual is not really sick; just a bit sluggish mentally and physically.

If, however, the fat becomes excessive especially in middle aged or older people certain signs due to this excess fat become noticeable. The face becomes flushed, in fact assumes almost a bluish color, especially under exertion.

Children's Eye Defects

These "behaviors" and noticeable symptoms of children may show parents that the youngster's eyes may be defective:

1. Attempts to brush away blur.
2. Blinks continually when reading.
3. Cries frequently.
4. Has frequent fits of temper.
5. Holds the book far away from face when reading.
6. Holds the book close to eyes when reading, or keeps face close to page.
7. Holds body tense when looking at a distant object.
8. Is inattentive during reading lesson.
9. Is inattentive during wall chart, map or blackboard lesson.
10. Is inattentive during class discussion of field trip or visit to museum.
11. Is irritable over work.
12. Reads but a brief period without stopping.
13. Reads when he should be at play.
14. Rubs the eyes frequently.
15. Screws up face when reading.
16. Screws up face when looking at distant objects.
17. Shuts one eye when reading or covers one when reading.
18. Thrusts head forward in an effort to see distant objects.
19. Tilts head to one side when reading.

Conditions about the eyes that can be observed by parents and teachers: (a) Crusts on lids among lashes; (b) red eyelids; (c) styes; swollen eyelids; and watery eyes. The child may also report dizziness, headaches or nausea.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT FINDS A FRIEND

AS LIGHTFOOT the Deer stood resting and trying to recover his breath out there on the little sandbar in the Big River, his great, soft, beautiful eyes watched first one bank and then the other. On the bank he had left he could see two black-and-white specks moving about, and across the water came the barking of dogs. Those two specks were the hounds who had driven him into the Big River. They were barking now instead of baying. Presently a brown form joined the black-and-white specks. It was a hunter drawn there by the barking of the dogs. He was too far away to be dangerous, but the mere sight of him filled Lightfoot with terror again. He watched the hunter walk along the bank and disappear in the bushes.

Presently out of the bushes came a boat, and in it was the hunter. He headed straight toward Lightfoot, and then Lightfoot knew that his brief rest was at an end. He must once more swim or be shot by the hunter in the boat. So Lightfoot again struck out for the shore. His rest had given him new strength, but still he was very, very tired, and swimming was hard work.

Slowly, oh, so slowly, he drew nearer to the bank. What new dangers there might be there he did not know. He had never been on that side of the Big River. He knew nothing of the country on that side. But the uncertainty was better than the certainty behind him. He could hear the sound of the oars as the hunter in the boat did his best to get to him before he should reach the shore.

Brown Crepe Frock

On Lightfoot struggled. At last he felt bottom beneath his feet. He staggered up through some bushes along the bank, and then for an instant it seemed to him his heart stopped beating. Right in front of him stood a man. He had come out into the backyard of the home of that man. It is doubtful which was the more surprised, Lightfoot or that man. Right then and there Lightfoot gave up in despair. He couldn't run. It was all he could do to walk. The long chase by the hounds on the other side of the Big River, and the long swim across the Big River had taken all his strength.

Not a spark of hope remained to Lightfoot. He simply stood still and trembled, partly with fear and partly with weariness. Then a surprising thing happened. The man spoke softly. He advanced, not threateningly, but slowly and in a friendly way. He walked around back of Lightfoot, and then straight toward him. Lightfoot walked on a few steps, the man followed, still talking softly. Little by little he urged Lightfoot on, driving him toward an open shed in which was a pile of hay. Without understanding just how, Lightfoot knew that he had found a friend. So he entered the open shed, and with a long sigh lay down in the soft hay.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

CANDY TIME

CANDY time is anytime, for every one loves candy or there is something wrong with the department of interior. With the time and materials for making candy, there is no sport that can be more entertaining. For those who have no taste for the making of it, candy can be supplied in countless varieties even in the small cities, at prices which are not unreasonable.

Fancy Caramels.

Put two cupsful of sugar, one cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of corn sirup, one cupful of cream, two cupsful of milk, one-half cupful of butter in a saucepan and cook and stir until the candy forms a soft ball when tested in cold water—246 degrees F. Add one package of dates sliced, and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and turn at once into lightly greased pans. When cold remove from the pans and cut into squares with a hot knife. Wrap each in waxed paper. This recipe will make two and one-half pounds.

English Toffee.

Put two cupsful of sugar, one and one-half cupsful of sirup, one and one-

GREATLY GOOD

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THIS is the greatness of great deeds. By which the humble man succeeds. Where oftentimes the mighty fails: That greatness is not measured in. The name we wear or wealth we win. Where often littleness prevails: For any can be great who would. Since all men can be greatly good.

This is the greatness of this earth. That greatness counts not wealth as worth. Nor title the important thing.

For men, what task they may pursue, Are measured by the good they do. Not by the profit it may bring. The measure of man's brotherhood Is merely being greatly good.

This is the greatness of the great. Whether they nobly lead the state. Or nobly teach a village school: That they more happiness have brought By noble principles they taught.

Than those who poorly teach or rule. Both shall be judged, as heaven would. By whether they are greatly good. © Douglas Malloch.—WNU Service.

Chose Proper Handle to Help Bear Other's Burden

Everything has two handles, the one by which it may be borne, the other by which it may not. If your brother acts unjustly, do not lay hold of the act by that handle wherein he acts unjustly, for this is the handle which cannot be borne; but lay hold of the other, that he is your brother, that he was nurtured with you, and you will lay hold of the thing by that handle by which it can be borne.

DON'T SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE, AFFECTS HEART

Gas Pressure May Cause Discomfort. Right Side Best

CONGRESS "OILING UP"

Congress has started its grind and President Roosevelt "swears on a stack of Bibles" that his promise of a short session will be kept for the good of government, business and the country. Along with this is another honest-to-goodness under hand and seal, honor upon oath that the Administration from now on would cost less.

The main reason for being "short" is a limited legislative program must be the rule. Appropriation and relief bills will be "pared down" and rushed to the limit. The cash payment of the soldiers' adjustment compensation, is certain to come up for early action with unanimous support from veterans' organization and adequate backing from members of Congress.

A new NRA bill is to be ready for swift submission to Congress, should business show signs of wanting it and as President Roosevelt has been advised of the basic provisions of the measure and has expressed no objections there may be a new NRA law.

CALIFORNIA FIRST AGAIN

In another matter these days, California is right up in the front rank. Out of 48 states, only eight have thus far adopted unemployment compensation laws designed to carry out the National social security act. This State is one of the eight.

And yet only a few Californians understand how the new law will work, although it affects virtually all of us. A tax of 1 per cent in 1936, 2 per cent in 1937, and 3 per cent in 1938 and thereafter will apply to the payrolls of employers of eight or more persons, with exemption for agricultural, domestic and shipping labor; employees of the Federal, State, county or city governments; service of members of a family and employees of nonprofit organizations for education or charitable purposes.

The rate of compensation for unemployed cannot exceed 50 per cent of the wages, with a weekly maximum of $15 and a minimum of $7.50. Payrolls of eight or more are effected according to our reading of the law.

NICE WEATHER, BUT

These bright, sunny December and January days we've been having in California of late are cheerful and beautiful to look upon. But right now, according to rainfall charts, we could well trade some of the cheerful atmosphere for a little life-giving rain.

California's soil is sadly in need of moisture. Throughout most of the State to date rainfall stands at about 60 per cent of normal. And this is the more discouraging to farmers—to all of us for that matter—since we got the impression a year ago that the cycle of dryness had passed with the flood of rain we had then. There have been altogether too many dry years.

In 1929, 1930, 1932 and 1933 rainfall in many parts of the State was not much more than half normal. Unless this is to be another dry one, the clouds must spill a lot of moisture before winter is through.

Selling character to American youth is the country's big task today. Convinced that crime can be eliminated through education, the National Crime Prevention Council organized in 1932 by Southern California civic leaders—will attempt to stimulate interest and to enlist the support of all service clubs in every state. The long-range objective of the movement is to incorporate in every public and private school curriculum a course in character building in order to bring the necessity of this phase of education before young children. This also seems a most imperative appeal to parents in the home to exemplify good character and to insist that their children be given the proper emphasis on clean and healthful living and thinking. Civic groups must be included in this campaign for a unified drive to raise the nation's young generation to a higher character standard. Chiefly, it will be the purpose to teach them to honor the American flag, to respect law and order, and to preserve and defend the Constitution of the United States.

Periodically the latest telephone directory is dropped on your desk. This is one of the potential acts twice a year to keep alive and up-to-date in a changing, transient world. Telephones are such useful things and the telephone book is one of the most-sought-for volumes known today; and when it is wanted, it is wanted bad! A book of names. There are names which look as if the type were pied, others that look like exclamation points. From "Aab to Zuzka", very imaginable combination of letters hits you in the eye. This book is, in a way, a sketch of life in our times; it tells of the doctor, lawyer, priest, storeman and in fact every station of life at the present moment. The tons of paper that go into the publication are inestimable in a busy world like this, say nothing about the network of overland. In New England states alone, there are 5,270,840 miles of telephone wire, all in underground cable except about 204,860 miles which are strung overhead.

The airplane is already a heavy competitor with rail transportation; especially the transcontinental ships. With the Diesel engines, streamlined and making record runs overland, it is the strongest competitor. Air conditioned trains, faster rail transportation and a railroad war for supremacy is in sight. It looks as if we were coming into an era of progress, a battle for transportation business. Every convenience in airplane transportation is ideal. They arrive precisely on time, just like a railroad train. You see two headlights in the distance. They point downward. As they grow brighter you see them, spread their rays on the ground. Then the giant plane makes a landing. Not a jar of any kind. It races across the field and swerves into position in front of the entrance. Quickly a platform is moved into place and the passengers step from the plane. Everything is orderly and quiet.

OCEAN BEACH POST 433
AND AUXILIARY AMERICAN
LEGION HOST TO CO. COUNCIL

On Tuesday, Jan. 14, the Ocean Beach post 433 American Legion will play host to the San Diego County Council in the club rooms of the Woman's club. The ladies auxiliary have promised to serve a supper long to be remembered promptly at 6:30 p. m. So be on hand you delegates bring your comrades early and avoid the rush. At the stroke of eight bells (8 o'clock to the soldiers) the County Council commander Harry L. Foster will call the meeting to order for the purpose of transacting some very important business. Soooooo! all Legionnaires interested in Legion affairs are urged to come and enjoy the hospitality of this post.

Post News.....
At the regular meeting of the post held Thursday, Jan. 2, a great many important matters were brought before the members and the most important one was the expression of gratitude to each and everyone who so graciously helped us to make the Christmas spirit a real bright spot for those who might otherwise not have had any, and we wish to take this opportunity to thank them and wish them a real prosperous New Year. In the very near future we will announce a meeting to which everyone interested in safety first are invited and urged to attend.

The post has added another community betterment project to their program this year in that it will offer scholarship awards to the pupils of the sixth grade of the Ocean Beach school, one each for a boy and a girl and many other activities for community, state and nation are planned for the year. We cordially invite all veterans of the World War to join this lively post.

"Ganging up in the Interest of Youth" was the topic by John R. Lyon, director of WPA program for the prevention of delinquency, before the Ocean Beach PTA meeting Wednesday evening. Instrumental music by local pupils. Room mothers of Mrs. Moon's and Mrs. Carl's rooms were hostesses.

Saturday night last an evening of dancing intended to promote social attitudes among pupils, was sponsored by the local PTA under guidance of Mrs. Esther Wisdom, Mrs. Florence McCausland, J. W. McCausland and T. M. Welch. Music arranged by a WPA orchestra. An amateur performance with balloons, whistles and dance instruction was staged by the youngsters themselves which added to the gaiety of the occasion. Only students to whom recreation cards have been issued are invited to these socials.

Professional Football Here Next Sunday

San Diego will get a look at professional football, the wide open game of today, at its best Sunday, January 12, when the Greenbay Packers, National Professional league football team of Greenbay, Wisconsin, meets Irvine Warburton'sighthorse professional team at Sports Field. The game between the national stars and the team assembled in Los Angeles by the former San Diego High school and later U. S. C. All-American backfield star, will be played at 2:15.

The Packers were one of the most powerful teams in the professional football league which recently closed its season. They finished second in just about all departments of the game, in passes completed over the reason, in holding opponents to the east yardage and in other departments which tell the real power of a football squad.

The Wisconsin team will be making its first Pacific Coast appearance in San Diego. A game in San Francisco against an All-Star College team has been arranged for the week after the game here with a third appearance scheduled for Los Angeles.

Seats for the game went on sale Tuesday with a heavy demand reported by Linn Platner, in charge of the game. Prices are $1.65 for reserved seats; $1.10 general admission, and 50 cents for students of grammar and high schools.

Interesting History Of California Counties

Believing that the thousands of tourists who annually motor over the state's great highway system would like to know how the counties they visit came by their names, Director of Public Works Earl Lee Kelly, at the request of Governor Frank F. Merriam, has had prepared from state records a series of brief stories of the origin and meaning of the names of the counties of California including a few salient facts about each county.

—Editor.

San Bernardino County—Created April 26, 1858. Saint Bernard is the patron saint of mountain passes. The name "Bernardino" means "bold as a bear." The Spanish gave to the snow-capped peak in southern California the name of San Bernardino in honor of the saint, and from this the county got its name.

This county, big enough to place the states of Delaware, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Rhode Island within its boundaries, is the largest in California. With thousands of fertile and well-watered acres, a vast stretch of desert with untold mineral wealth, transcontinental railroad lines 3600 miles of roads and highways, a score of thriving cities and many small communities, San Bernardino is an empire within itself. Mountain peaks, snow-capped, towering 11,800 and 12,600 feet, look down upon orange and lemon groves and the wastelands of the Mojave Desert.

Mission padres and early Spanish settlers, who were followed by hardy pioneers and Mormons from Salt Lake City, made San Bernardino what it is today. In 1774, Father Juan Bautista de Anza, seeking an inland route from Sonora, in Old Mexico, to Monterey, led the first expedition into the county. One of his party, Father Francisco Hermenegildo Garces, returned in 1776 and was the first white man to traverse the Mojave Desert. Padre Dumetz of the San Gabriel Mission founded a capilla at the Guachama Rancho on May 20, 1810, which was known as Old San Bernardino. Stock raising and farming were introduced to the Indians by Mission Fathers in 1819. Following a disastrous attempt to lead a wagon train into Southern California from Utah in 1849, Captain Jefferson Hunt returned to Salt Lake City in 1850 and persuaded Brigham Young to send 500 Mormons with livestock and household equipment into San Bernardino. The first of these settlers arrived in June, 1851, and the present site of the city of San Bernardino was selected for settlement. A recall of Mormons in 1857 forced many to return to Salt Lake City.

San Bernardino has approximately 15,000 dairy cows, 23,000 beef cattle, more than a million chickens and about 100,000 swine. The production of the Navel orange is the county's largest industry valued into the millions. About 47,000 acres are devoted to citrus fruits, one-fourth of the acreage so devoted in the country. A great variety of fruits, grain and hay and truck crops, bring to the farmers more than $36,000,000 annually. The world's largest vineyard, 5000 acres, is near the town of Guasti.

The county ranks first in point of variety of minerals and the Randsburg mines make it first in silver production. San Bernardino's scenic attractions ranging from desert to mountain peak are many and varied and Lake Arrowhead, 22 miles from San Bernardino, is world-famous. Population: 133,900. Area: 20,175 square miles.

San Diego County—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of California. On November 12, 1603, the day of San Diego de Alcalá (St. James of Alcalá), Sebastian Vizcaino anchored his fleet in the bay of San Diego, and named the same in honor of the day, as well as in honor of his flagship, which name has since been retained although Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo named this bay San Miguel on September 28, 1542, sixty-one years previous. It is from this bay that the county derived its name.

"The beginning of history in California," says the author of that informative volume "Southern California at a Glance," "is synonymous with the beginning of San Diego and vice versa. Exactly fifty years after Columbus first looked upon the fair land of America, then believed to be the East Indies, Don Juan Rodriguez

Cabrillo brought the first ship to anchor in the bay of San Diego. This was the advent of the first white man upon the western coast of the United States. In San Diego the first cross was erected to guide the heathen to the first church. Here the first home was built, the first town laid out, the first irrigation system installed, the first fields were turned to receive the first seed, and the first school opened its doors.

A maximum of sunlight and a soil containing, to an exceptional degree, all the chemical elements necessary to plant life unite to produce a great variety of agricultural crops, including tropical and semi-tropical fruits. Approximately 4,000 farms embrace 833,336 highly cultivated acres. Upwards of 35,000 acres are under irrigation. Some fruit or crop ripens in every month of the year. Among these are alfalfa, almonds, apples, apricots, avocados, barley, beans, cherries, corn, figs, grapes, grapefruit, hay, honey, lemons, olives, oranges, peaches, pears, plums, potatoes, prunes, tomatoes, walnuts and a long list of vegetables.

San Diego boasts of the Cleveland National Forest, world-famous ocean beaches, including Coronado, the Cabrillo National Monument, one of the most equable climates in the world, one of the greatest harbors, Rockwell Field, army air base, the Naval Air Station and Carrizo Gorge, one of California's scenic marvels. It has held two great international expositions. Population: 209,659. Area: 4221 square miles.

San Francisco County—Created February 18, 1850. Is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the state. The sixth mission in California was established by Padre Junipero Serrain October 9, 1776, and was named "Mission San Francisco de Asis a la Laguna de los Dolores" (Saint Francis of Assisi at the Lagoon of Sorrows), and to this mission San Francisco owes its name.

In 1579 Sir Francis Drake ran his Ye Golden Hinde into Drake's Bay, just north of the Golden Gate, for repairs. This was 200 years before Padre Junipero Serra came up out of Spain. Drake never discovered San Francisco Bay. He passed the entrance to the Golden Gate in a heavy fog. On October 31, 1769, Don Gaspar de Portola, Governor of Baja or Lower California, discovered the huge bay and the picturesque peninsula while searching for Monterey Bay, discovered by Sebastian Vizcaino in 1602. The first ship to sail through the Gate was Don Juan Manuel Aylala's San Carlos in 1775. In July of the next year, when the Liberty Bell was ringing in Philadelphia, Colonel Juan Bautista de Anza established a military post at the Presidio. Two months later Padre Junipero Serra founded Mission San Francisco de Asis a la Laguna de los Dolores. Then a small settlement was established at Yerba Buena Cove and the pueblo grew into the city of San Francisco.

Three times in the early period of its existence, San Francisco was burned down and then came the great fire and earthquake in 1906. Since then more than a half billion dollars worth of new construction has been completed.

Two months after the county was created the city of San Francisco was incorporated and the two are combined in one government. San Francisco is a great industrial, financial and shipping center.

San Francisco boasts that its climate is one of its greatest assets. For twenty years the average summer temperature has been 62.1 degrees and the average winter temperature 51.1 degrees. The city and county holds an enviable position with reference to agriculture. Tributary to San Francisco bay are 16,000,000 farm acres with approximately 5,000,000 acres under irrigation. The harbor of San Francisco has been the biggest factor in the county's growth. The port annually handles over 41,000,000 tons of waterborne commerce valued in excess of $2,260,000,000. Japan, China, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Central and South America are San Francisco's "neighbors."

San Francisco leads all cities west of Chicago in bank debits to individual accounts, resources and deposits and is second to New York in stock exchange transactions.

Forty-eight parks, including the famous Golden Gate Park, 46 playgrounds, Ocean Beach, Seal Rocks, Twin Peaks and world-renowned restaurants and hotels are only a few of the city's attractions. The Latin quarter, Chinatown, French colony, Japanese section and the Embarcadero make it one of the world's greatest cosmopolitan centers.

San Francisco, with state and government aid, is completing the two largest bridges ever conceived—the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge and the Golden Gate bridge. Population: 634,394. Area: 42 square miles.

San Joaquin County—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties. The meaning of the name of this county has a very ancient origin and refers to the parentage of Mary, the mother of Christ. According to tradition, Joachim signifies "whom Jehovah hath appointed", and thence the belief that Joachim, the Spanish spelling of Joachim, was the father of Mary.

In 1813, Lieutenant Moraga, commanding a Spanish expedition in the lower central valley of California, gave to a small stream, which springs from the Sierra Nevada mountains and empties into Buena Vista Lake, the name of Sea Joaquin, and it is from this that the present river derived its name, which in turn baptized the county with the same.

San Joaquin county is an agricultural paradise. It ranks among the first three of all counties of the United States in combined volume diversification of farm production. It grows fifty distinct farm products of commercial importance. It is first among all California counties in acreage of table and juice grapes, second in sugar beet production, third in asparagus acreage and fourth in value of crops and livestock products of all counties in the United States.

Water is one of the county's great assets. The Mokelumne and Calaveras rivers flow toward the west from the Sierra Nevada mountains, the Stanislaus flows along the southern boundary and the San Joaquin, navigable from Stockton to San Francisco bay, crosses the county from south to west and aids in forming the famous Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta. Of the San Joaquin Delta, the late Luther Burbank, horticultural wizard, once said:

"The Delta is a tremendous, partially developed agricultural gold mine, containing the most fertile soil the sun ever shone upon. I would give $10,000 for one acre of this soil if I could have it at my Santa Rosa experiment gardens, and would entrust to it my most rare and delicate seeds."

The county ranks first in corn, first in oats, second in hay crops, third in barley fifth in wheat, fifth in vegetables and eleventh in cattle.

The city of Stockton was founded in 1847, prior to the gold rush. It became an important outfitting station for miners, many of whom came around the Horn and found their way up the San Joaquin to Stockton, where they disembarked. The city, with completion of the Stockton deep-water-ship-channel-to-the-sea, now is an important inland port. More agricultural machinery is manufactured there than in any other city in the west. Population: 102,940. Area: 1448 square miles.

Next: San Luis Obispo, San Mateo and Santa Barbara.

ARBOR WEEK—JANUARY 20-24

Homemakers in San Diego are being given an unusual opportunity to beautify their homes with ornamental and shade trees thru the cooperation City Park department, PTA, and the San Diego schools, who are inaugurating a tree planting campaign during the week of January 20 to 24.

Prices of trees are very reasonable as indicated by these examples: acacias, 15c; shrubs, 5c; eucalyptus, 17c; live oak, 20c; pittosporum, 5c and 15c. Except for palms priced at $1 and $1.50 no tree or shrub is over 20c.

Ocean Beach school is collecting the orders and money for this community. Trees will be delivered to the school. Purchasers must provide transportation of their plants from the school to the home. All orders must be in by January 13.

Upon request pamphlets with full price lists and instructions for planting may be secured from the school. The size of the hole is an important factor, for successful growth of the trees. It is better to have a 5c tree and a 10 hole than the reverse.

MOVING PICTURE

A moving picture taken by Mr. Fisher, "I Love You California" was shown in the school auditorium Thursday at 2 and 3 o'clock as a pay performance to earn money for the student body fund. The unusual photographic effects emphasized the natural beauty of our state, and left unforgettable pictures of the varied scenery.

BANKING

Many pupils deposited Christmas checks and money at the first bank day after vacation when $47.82 was put into savings accounts. We feel sure Santa should be very much pleased with this.

NEW STUDENTS

Sixteen new pupils entered Ocean Beach school following holiday moves. Many of these came from other states: Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Nebraska and Colorado.

MUSEUM

The low second grade is making a museum. They have made a collection of shells, pine-cones, rocks, plants and seeds.

During the nature study period there was an interesting lesson on the silk worm.

ROOM COMMITTEES

The following children were appointed to serve on committees in Mrs. Karl's room until the end of the semester: Victrola Joyce Oberholser; library, Charles Froide and Dick Chadwick; work room, Frank Rippee and George Shields; coat room, Bruce Barlow and Eugene Robinson; supplies, Irene Harris and Alberta Boyce; attendance slip, Paul Keister; art committee, Jack Gilbert, Marilyn Cleveland, Myrtle Burke and Dorothy Marie Thomas; flowers, Shirley Littlefield, Carol Dewhurst; garden, Vernon Duggins and Billy Thomas; door monitor, Marjorie Applegate and ball monitor, Donald Welsh.

BASE BALL GAME

The low fifth and high fourth room received three new pupils Monday. They are Marjorie Townsend from Nebraska, Trina Baker from New Mexico, and Betty Lauter from Oakland.

Miss McCabe's class played Miss Figgins' room Tuesday afternoon. Both teams played a fine game. Paul Jones is captain of one team and John Githero is captain of the other. Paul's team won 7 to 6.

The 6B's in Miss Shea's room are studying cities of the United States. On Wednesday they invited the 6A grade to enjoy a series of still films

BANK OF AMERICA EXPERIENCES BEST YEAR IN HISTORY

Deposits Increase $177,000,000; Resources Up $135,000,000; Bank of America National Trust & Savings Association, largest bank in the United States outside New York City, in 1935 experiences the record year of its history, with deposits, resources and earnings all registering their all-time high marks. In addition to attaining the highest recorded totals, the deposits, resources, and earnings of the bank in 1935 showed their greatest comparative gains over any preceding years in the bank's history.

Bank of America N. T. & S. A. is the fourth largest bank of the nation, preceded only by Chase National Bank, National City Bank and Guaranty Trust Company, all of New York, in total amount of deposits and resources.

Deposits of Bank of America N. T. & S. A. in the past year increased $176,933,000 to a total of $1,155,265,000 as of December 31, 1935.

Total resources of the bank on December 31 stood at $1,277,419,000, an increase of $135,096,000 for the year just closed.

Earnings of the bank for 1935 totaled $16,276,000, an amount equal to $8.14 a share on 2,000,000 outstanding shares of capital stock. In 1934, earnings totaled $10,530,000, or $5.26 1/4 a share on the same number of outstanding shares.

During 1935 the bank paid $6,000,000 in dividends, including the $1,000,000 extra dividend declared in the last quarter. Dividends amounted to $3 a share during the past year, as against $1.87 1/2 a share in 1934, when a total of $3,750,000 was disbursed. In addition to dividend payments, $6,573,000 of the bank's 1935 earnings was allocated to reserves and $3,703,000 went into surplus and undivided profits, which totaled $50,867,000 at the close of the year.

MIDNIGHT, JANUARY 30, AUTO LICENSE DEADLINE

Midnight, January 30, is the definite, final deadline for the 1936 motor vehicle registration period which opened Thursday, January 2.

State law rigidly fixes the close of the registration season at that hour, and extensions of the time such as were allowed in former years, will not be legally possible, points out the Automobile club of Southern California. The principal reason is that the new tax law makes the Vehicle License Fee of $1.75 per $100 valuation effective January 1 and requires payment within thirty days. The identification paper for payment of this fee, which is in lieu of personal property taxes, is the motor vehicle registration certificate, so that registration must be completed and the additional $3 registration fee for new number plates paid at the same time.

After January 30, 1936, delinquent penalties of 100 per cent of the new additional license fee will go into effect. This penalty doubling the amount of the valuation license fee for delinquent applicants will be a considerable assessment on many cars and is expected to get applicants in line well before the final hour.

of different cities. Washington, D. C., San Francisco, Chicago and New Orleans were shown. Luella Brown of Miss Shea's room has transferred to Oceanside.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From safe cover he finds four men evidently, had been murdered. Pharaoh is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address on it. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure.

"No, they won't," said Geoffrey. "I'll tell you why. Those four didn't come out here to do in somebody's servant—for that's who their victim was. What he had on was a tunic, and some of the old houses here still dress their people like that. Boots to the knee?"

"Undressed, brown leather," said I. Geoffrey nodded.

"He was wearing livery. Very well. Those four are here on some job, and the murdered man got in their way. He may have surprised them—as you did; and so they just bumped him off. But, unless I'm much mistaken, the job remains to be done. Otherwise, they wouldn't have buried him."

And here for the first time, I think, the thought came into my head that we stood all three on the edge of some grave adventure.

"And now," said Geoffrey, rising, "I'll lay before you the card that I've up my sleeve. It's not a very nice card, but it's going to count quite a lot in this little game."

"I was staying with the Lyvedens in Hampshire a few years back. It was a Goodwood party, and the jewels in the house were worth a lot. Well, they were stolen all right. Barley wasn't with me, but he'll remember the case."

"The Bell Hammer murders, sir?"

"Exactly. Three servants and a policeman were murdered by the fellows who took those jewels. They could have laid them out or tied them up; but they preferred to kill them, because then they knew where they were."

"They never got the thieves, but Anthony Lyveden told me as much as he knew; and amongst other things he told me that the moment they heard of the matter the police knew who'd done the job. Only one man, they said, was ruthless and daring enough to go such lengths. And the man was known as 'Pharaoh.'"

"Now that's all I know. This may or may not be the man. But if it is—well, from what I've just told you, you'll gather that he doesn't like witnesses."

To my great dismay my cousin then announced that we must be gone from the inn as soon as we could.

"We're out to fight these men. Well, the first thing to do is to vanish, for until we are out of their ken, we cannot attack, but must waste our time taking precautions against an attempt on your life. More. At the moment not one of those wallahs knows you by sight, and that's a card which must not be thrown away. And now you go out and lose yourself in the town. Barley and I will pack, and I'll pick you up at nine in front of St. Jacques'. I shall give out we're going to Salzburg, and Barley can go to the station and point the lie."

"Where are we going?" said I.

"To Annabell," said my cousin. "I liked the look of the village and I'm sure they'll do us proud at The Reaping Hook." And now you pop off, my son. Every minute is precious, as you must see."

I made my way out of the inn, and when some servant or other ran after me, letter in hand, I took the missive from him as a man in a dream. I did not open the letter—I had no need; for one thing, it was already open, and for another, I knew what the envelope held. And that was a shoemaker's bill.

That I now felt far from easy, I frankly confess. I could not get away from the fact that the enemies that I had made were no ordinary men.

First, they had frustrated the watch we had kept; then, they had gained their end, which was, of course, to get to know me, by sight—for someone, no doubt, was in waiting, to see me come out of the inn and, lastly, they had informed me in unmistakable terms that they were fully aware that I had seen them at work. All this, I may say, in a little more than an hour.

As I entered the bustling market, I wondered what Geoffrey would say. . . .

It suddenly came to my mind that as like as not I now was being followed by whoever it was that had watched me come out of the inn. At once I determined to see if it was the case and if it was, to endeavor to turn the tables on the man who was so engaged.

I made my way out of the market and into an alley too narrow for carts to use.

For more than an hour I wandered the curious streets, crossing and stopping and idling and turning back, but I never set eyes upon any one of the four or on anyone else that I could fairly suspect; and at last I decided to rest and drink before making my way to St. Jacques'.

I was sitting in a cafe, drinking my liquor when I saw a car going by on the opposite side of the square.

For a moment I sat spell-bound. Then I was up and was running as hard as I could.

The car was a cabriolet, very long and handsome and painted green. Its hood was raised, so that whoever was in it was not to be seen, but in front were sitting two chauffeurs—in curious livery. In a word, they were wearing green tunics, exactly like that of the man whom I had seen lying that morning, awaiting his grave.

The car was gathering speed when I flung myself on to the step.

As someone within exclaimed, I thrust my head over the door.

"Forgive me," I said, using German, "but I have most urgent news. Of the very gravest import. I don't know who you are, but you're deeply concerned."

A girl was regarding me as though I were less than the dust, and as the car came to rest, a hand was laid on my arm.

"How can your news concern me, if you don't know who I am?"

The words were spoken in English, with the faintest American touch, and the tone was less cold than imperious.

"I recognized your livery," I said. "Hasn't one of your men disappeared?"

The girl never moved, but her eyes looked straight into mine.

"What do you know," she asked, "of one of my men?"

"I know that he's dead," said I. "I saw her start at the word, and a hand went up to her mouth."

"And I know who killed him," I said, "and I'll help you to rope them in. But we'll have to go carefully, because they're a gang of four, and they're pretty hot stuff. Besides, they didn't kill him for nothing. I mean, I rather think there's a good deal behind this crime."

The girl looked at me curiously. Then she sat back on the cushions and glanced at her watch.

"I expect the police," she said coldly, "will be glad to hear any facts. The station is in the next street."

My speech was impetuous, I know, and never would have been spoken if

"We're Out to Fight These Men."

I had but a moment to choose my words; but to whip me so was monstrous, and the blood came into my face.

"On the other hand," I said thickly, "the police may agree with you."

"Agree with me—what do you mean?"

"That it's none of my business," said I.

With that, I made her a bow and sauntered back to my cafe.

As I gained the pavement, I heard a step at my side.

Then a chauffeur was speaking, hat in hand.

"Her ladyship, sir, would be glad of your name and address."

"Tell her ladyship this: My name does not matter, and my address is this cafe—until I have finished my beer."

The man withdrew, and, more enraged than ever, I sat myself down at my table and mopped my face.

I had been used with contumely, as though I had been some peasant, the worse for drink. This by a girl whom I was seeking to serve. At last I looked up, there was the car before me with my lady's face framed in its window and the chauffeur standing beside the door.

"If you will forgive me, perhaps I can give you a lift."

This unadorned apology acted on me as a charm. All my resentment vanished.

I got to my feet, laid a coin on the table and picked up my hat. . . .

As I took my seat beside her—

"I'm to blame," I said, "and I've nothing at all to forgive. I'm afraid I shook you up. But I—I hadn't rehearsed this meeting and I guess I went off half-cocked. I shall do it again in a minute, so I'd better just tell you my tale."

"One moment—where shall I take you?"

"If you please, to the church of St. Jacques."

As the car moved off—

"I'm Helena Yorick," said the girl, "and Yorick is the name of my home, some seven miles off."

I gave her my name at once and then, without waiting longer, plunged into my tale.

"When I had done—

"Are you sure you weren't followed?" she said. "I mean, if you were, they now know you're in touch with me."

"I'm sure I wasn't," said I.

With my words the car stopped at the church.

"Well, you can't get out here," said the girl. "We must find a much quieter place. Besides, you must hear my story. Sit back in the car and don't move. It's only a quarter of nine."

She gave some direction to the chauffeur and then sat back in her seat.

"My father died last November, leaving my brother and me. We're Austrian, you know; but my mother taught me English—she was American. My brother is younger than I am, and he's away just now; so I rather run the castle, although, of course, he's the Count. This duty takes me to Salzburg once a month. I made the journey by car four days ago. On the way an attempt was made to waylay me, and when I got through—I was driving—they chased me for thirty miles. I had a man with me called Florin. Three generations of Florins have served our house. His father's my warden—has charge of all the keys. Well, six men act as night-watchmen, taking the duty by turns. Old Florin chooses the men, and his son was one of the six. He was on duty last night, and this morning he couldn't be found." Her voice began to quaver, and I heard her smother a sob.

To see her so near to weeping must have wrung anyone's heart.

"I'm most dreadfully sorry," I said. "And if you'll let me help you, we'll bring the blackguards to book. But you see my cousin was right. Florin was nothing to them, but he got in their way."

"Yes," said the girl, "that's clear. The night-watchman got in their way. With a sudden movement she turned. "But you must keep out of this. Can't you go home?"

"I'm not going home," said I, "till I've seen this through."

"Don't be foolish," she said. "This quarrel is mine—not yours. Young Florin was not your man. Besides, you can do no good because they've got your number: lift a finger against them, and they won't do another thing till they've put you out."

"The point is this," said I. "That you don't want to fight them with me is natural enough. I've given you information which it was right you should have, and that, I frankly admit, is the end of my duty to you; but I owe that dead man a duty, and I'm going to do it."

I broke off to mop my face. "My cousin's with me," I added, "and so is his man."

"I wish," said the girl, "I could have a word with your cousin. Do you think he could meet me this evening—at a farm that I know?"

"I'll bring him with me," said I, "wherever you please."

Lady Helena looked away.

"You can come if you like," she said. "But I want to see him."

Then she took up a large-scale map and showed me the farm. This was by the name of Plumage and lay some four miles from Annabell, quite by itself.

"At five o'clock, then?" says she. I nodded.

"We shall be there."

"And now," she said, "I must drop you. Please don't stand still when you're out: start walking at once. And thank you very much for doing your duty to me. And—don't forget that that's ended."

As I took her slim hand, her steady gray eyes met mine.

"True," said I. "But my duty to Florin remains; and I'm not so sure as I was that he called upon me for vengeance."

"What else?" said the girl.

"He loved his mistress," I said. "As he died, he may have been thinking that she would be short of a man."

And then I went out of the car and was sauntering down the pavement. Except for a crone with a bucket, there seemed to be no one in sight.

As the Rolls swept over a crossing and on to the Salzburg road—

"I'm almost sure," said Geoffrey, "that we've stolen a march on our friends. Of course they may stick to Barley, but I doubt. And in any event he'll give them the slip at Salzburg."

"At Salzburg?" I cried.

"That's right," said my cousin. "He'll be in that city tonight. Tomorrow he'll come back to Villach, and there we shall pick him up as soon as it's dusk."

"You're taking no chances," said I. "Do you blame me, John? I mean, the return of your letter was pretty good work. Talk about a riposte. . . . And you may have been seen with my lady; in which case, as she observed, the job, whatever it is, will go by the board, and Pharaoh and Co.'s one idea will be to do you in. She's no fool, this gray-eyed goddess of yours. That's probably her American blood. And her Austrian made her stand-offish. These old Austrian families are terribly strict."

"She made amends," said I. "No one could have been more—more gracious."

My cousin laughed.

"Goddesses are gracious," he said. "And now please look behind you and keep your eyes on the road."

It was long past noon when we stole into Annabell.

Geoffrey berthed the car in the shade of some limes which grew fifty yards from the inn, on the opposite side of the way.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

If Mark Twain had lived a few years longer he would have had to retract his assertion that everybody complains a bout the weather, but nobody ever does anything about it.

Man and the Weather

Something will be done about it very shortly.

The disastrous drouths in the Southwest have led scientific men to search for ways and means of doing it.

The job will take a long time, but it will vastly more than repay all the work and all the money that will be consumed in the effort.

The plan is to stretch a forest like a belt across the desert and prairie part of the United States—a forest that will supply shade and make it possible to prevent the terrific damage done by dry spells in that section of the country.

Costly in time and money as this project will be, it will more than pay for itself after the trees have a good strong growth.

The new forest will be a hundred miles wide, and extend from the Canadian line to Mexico.

For years the treeless stretches from Montana to New Mexico have been the breeding places of heat, arid gales, and destructive sand storms.

The parched soil, loosened by the heat is raised at the bidding of the wind and swept on and on like the sands of Sahara.

If you have gone through such a storm you know what it is like.

If you haven't, it would be difficult to convince you of its fury.

But when a barrier of well-grown trees holds the gales in check and "ties" the soil to mother earth, the entire character of the weather will be changed and the farmer will have no more fear of the loss of his crops.

This vast enterprise cannot be carried out in a mere handful of years.

The most rapidly growing tree—a cottonwood or a poplar—requires years to grow to a useful size.

It must be defended from bugs and other parasites. Many trees will die and replacements will be necessary.

But when this bulwark of living green is at last ready for its colossal job there will be a new climate in the states which border on it, and states quite remote from the great divide will be affected favorably by it.

I hope that these trees will be planted forest fashion, and not placed in regular monotonous tiers as they are in Germany and France and other countries in Europe.

And I hope it will be possible to plant those which will supply wood in their old age, and thus in their declining years help to compensate for their cost.

When my valued friend, Samuel G. Blythe, was a small boy, he attended a circus in which the most interesting feature was an electric light.

Another Miracle

It wasn't a very good electric light. The carbon pencils spluttered and fizzed, showering multitudes of little white sparks on the ring below.

But the rustic population talked more about that light than they did about any other features of the show.

And well they might. There had been acrobat and equestrian and animal shows, since, probably before, the days of the Roman Coliseum. But up to a little time before Sam was awed and delighted with that exhibition there had never been a light which took its power from a wire.

That, as I said, was a long time ago. Electric engineers have been busily at work since then.

Today we not only still carry messages "by lightning" without any wires, but send music and conversation broadcast across the nation, and even force them to span the ocean.

And now comes the information that television is an accomplished fact, and that before many years a man in San Francisco can plainly see a friend in New York city while he is carrying on a conversation with him.

When I was a boy of ten I heard an old uncle of mine say to my father: "John, what would you think if I said to you that inside of thirty or forty years men would be flying through the air, like birds?"

"I should think," said my father, "that you had suddenly gone crazy. Man will never learn to fly on this world—and most of them won't ever get to heaven that way."

Today three planes pass over my house daily, on their regular route between New York and Boston.

Flight is a regular thing. Television promises us that before long we shall be able to speak with and see friends who are wandering about Europe.

All these changes have been brought about by the power of the human mind.

What will follow, neither you nor I can tell.

But we had better be careful about how we scoff at men who promise fresh wonders.

Science, on its way and in full swing, is capable of miracles which will far surpass those which we marvel at today.

Too bad it can't do something to put an end to the cruelty and needless destruction of life and property such as are convulsing a considerable part of Europe just now.

Women Have Lost Ground in Last Few Years, Claims Judge

Feminist From West Says a Change in Tactics Is Needed.

Judge Georgia Bullock, of the Superior court of Los Angeles, a recent visitor in Washington, D. C., believes that women have "lost ground" in the last few years, says the New York Sun.

Like all feminists, she advocates an equal chance for men and women in business and the professions. But unlike the militant feminists, she does not insist "rights" can be won or retained by combative tactics.

Time to Co-operative.

"Women in the past have won some concessions—suffrage, for example—by 'warfare,'" states the judge. "But the time for contention is gone. Now our only hope for survival in public life is to co-operate with the men and to work toward proving our merits and establishing ourselves, not as trouble-makers, but as real contributors to public welfare."

Contrary to the stand of most women in public life and in organizations, Judge Bullock is convinced that in the last few years women in this country have their wings clipped, have lost caste to a certain extent in business and the professions. She attributes this to world changes, but feels "the only way we can retrieve our former position is to prove we have unique ability and can work with, not against, men."

Her own successful career in the legal profession has taught her that the odds are not all against women. While she admits countless evidences of discriminations against women, she explains that this is not due so much to man's prejudice as to the attitude of women themselves.

Too Dominant?

Developing this theory, she said she had noticed how often women in high positions set out to execute their ideas, regardless of the opinions of men and women with whom they worked. Such action, she said, was enough to prejudice men against all women who sought self-expression outside the home. "But I have yet to see the man who resented working with an intelligent woman who knew how to co-operate with her associates and who didn't try to take over the reins completely."

The judge believes women could accomplish much more if they were strongly organized, "not as a third party but as a unit that could be counted on to help, rather than antagonize, men in public enterprises."

And she thinks women have a unique contribution to make to human welfare because no matter what their interests they can always be counted upon to defend the fireside, the family life of their country.

Accidents Cost as Many Lives in 1900 as Now

In spite of the increase in automobile deaths in the United States accidents cost no more lives now, in proportion to the population, than they did in 1900. Deaths from railroad and street car accidents, drowning, burns, poisonous gas, food poisoning, and suffocation, have dropped from an average of 47.7 per 100,000 population during 1900-1905 to 17.9 during 1931-1934, an improvement of 29.8.

The rate from automobile accidents was practically zero in 1900 and 28.4 in 1934. The one about balances the other. Accidents are now a greater hazard than any disease, except heart disease, cancer and nephritis. —Science Service.

Waiting

Old Br'er 'Coon Is a Wise One; Could Be Chosen National Animal

"If we were to adopt a national animal, just as we have adopted the eagle as the national bird, what better could we find than the raccoon?" asks Leon F. Whitney in the Journal of Mammalogy. Whitney favors the raccoon because it ranks as the most intelligent of mammals, and has proved its ability to survive where many other animals have succumbed.

Because the raccoon is nocturnal, it is one of the least understood of our animals, says Whitney. The common belief that the raccoon washes all of its food is discounted by him. "This observation has been made on raccoons in captivity and not in their natural state," he says.

Raccoons are popularly believed to hibernate all during the winter, but this is not always true, says Whitney. He calls the matter a relative one, for a cold snap which will drive a 'coon to his den in the fall may be not cold enough to keep him inside in the winter.

"In December, the raccoons will be found out on nights which may be as cold as 20 degrees, and when the temperature drops to 12 or 15, the raccoons will not be out," he says. "But temperatures which will make them go to their dens and go there during the early part of the fall, will not trouble them at all in the latter part of the fall. It seems to be an entirely relative matter, and the same condition applies throughout the winter. The warm nights all during the winter will bring the raccoons out, and the cold nights will keep them home."

Whitney has found that raccoons are not nearly as sensitive to noise as to vibration; that the sense of touch is developed far more in proportion than any of the other faculties. He gives the following explanation for this characteristic:

"Probably this development has come about through its tree climbing propensities. Living high up a tree where the wind roars and the thunder is louder, possibly a raccoon would need to be less sensitive to noise, and less wary for sound warnings. But he would need to be extremely sensitive to warnings through the sense of touch, and he is. If an enemy attempted to climb a tree in which he was living the facts must needs be transmitted to him; hence his development of this extraordinary power. Sometimes when hunting, my dogs have treed a raccoon in a tree too large to climb, and it seems impossible to induce him to look down at the flashlights so that his eyes may be seen and the hunter may know where to shoot. When an incident of this kind occurs, the hunters pound on the tree trunk with a rock. This will almost always arouse the animal's curiosity and he will look to see what is happening."

MET A PIEMAN AND ORDERED THREE OR FOUR; HE NOW EATS TUMS WHEN HEARTBURN COMES... DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE!

Stop SAYING "NO" TO FAVORITE FOODS

It isn't only pie that disagrees with some people. Many say that even milk gives them a gassy stomach. The very best foods may bring on acid indigestion, sour stomach, gas, heartburn. Millions have found that Tums quickly relieve acid indigestion. Munch 3 or 4 after meals or whenever smoking, hasty eating, last night's party, or some other cause brings on acid indigestion. Tums contain no harsh alkalies, which physicians have said may increase the tendency toward acid indigestion. Instead an antacid which neutralizes stomach acid, but never over-alkalizes the stomach or blood. You'll like their minty taste. Only 10c.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them. Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today. Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.
